

Walk 39. Wimbleball Lake.

- 8.2 miles, 3 hours. Ascents and descents of 275 metres.

Terrain: Generally well-kept paths and tracks, muddy after wet weather. Undulating, but no steep climbs.

Access: Park in the signposted pay and display car park on the western side of the lake (SS 965 308, close to TA22 9NU). Access is from the road between Brompton Regis and Ralegh's Cross. There is no direct access to the main car park from the south, but Haddon Hill (SS 969 285) on the B3190 can be used instead (adds approximately a mile to the walk; see Walk 39A). Alternatively park at Bessom Bridge (SS 975 318) where the causeway crosses the northern end of the reservoir (currently free) and join the walk there. No buses.

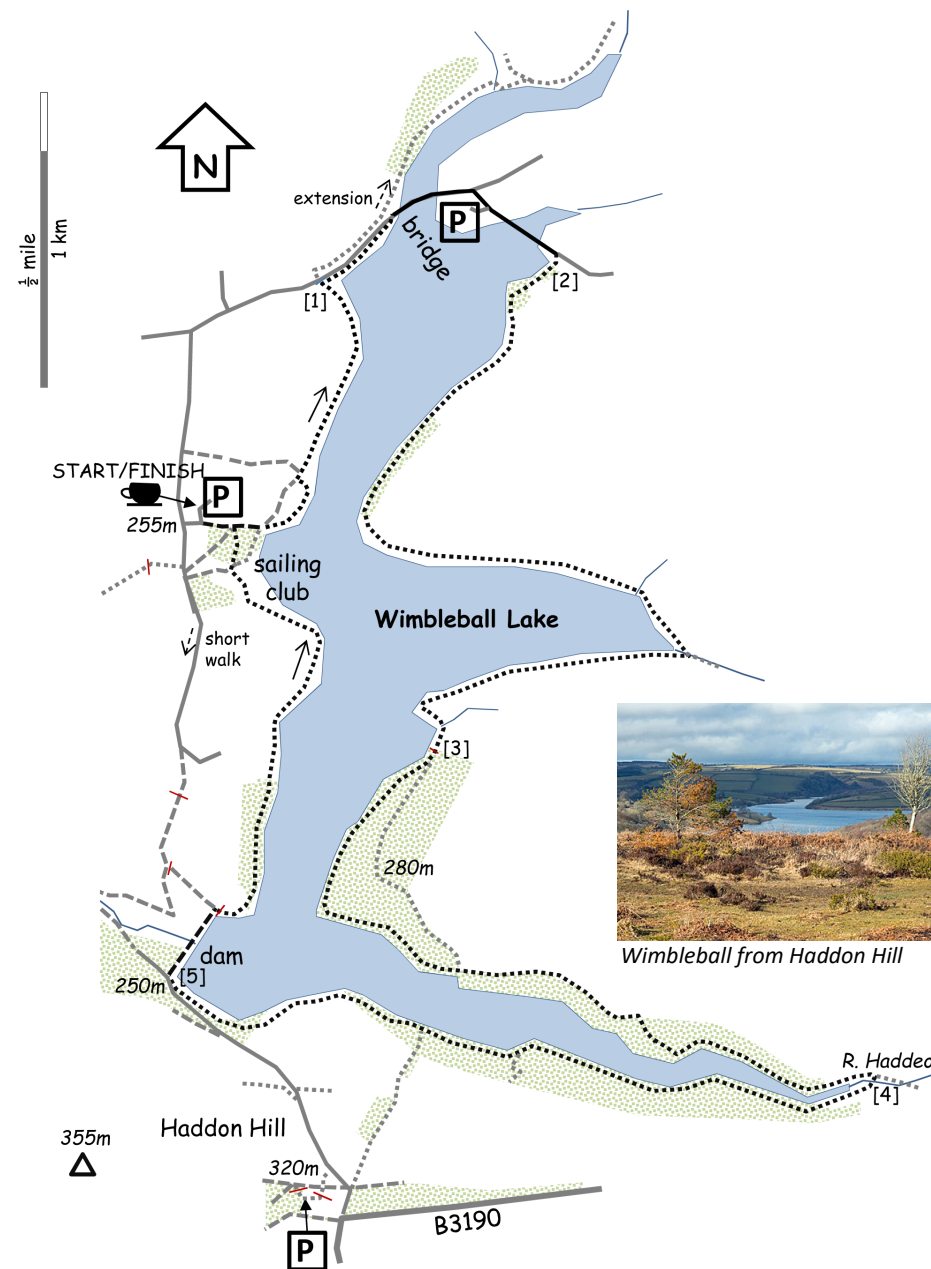

Map: OS Explorer OL9 Exmoor.

Refreshments: Seasonal cafés at the lakeside car park and on the road to Brompton Regis. (none at Haddon Hill). Otherwise pubs at Brompton Regis, Lowtrow Cross and Ralegh's Cross.

WIMBLEBALL LAKE IS THE LARGER AND BUSIER of the two reservoirs in the southern part of the Brendon Hills. Created in the 1970s by damming the valley of the River Haddeo, a tributary of the Exe, it is 50 metres deep and holds 21 million cubic metres of water, making it the largest lake in Somerset by volume. This walk starts from the 'hub' car park and café and circles the lake, with an optional extension to the northern tip and on to Withiel Florey. The instructions below will take you around in a clockwise direction.

Starting in front of the café, head downhill on the path to the water's edge, and turn left. Pass the small watersports centre, turn right on a wider path, and continue straight ahead, signposted Bessom Bridge. Arrive at a gate leading on to the road (15mins, [1]). You can make a detour here to visit the northern end of the lake and Withiel Florey (see overleaf). Otherwise turn right before the gate and follow the path parallel with the road. Join the road and cross the bridge, continue on the road, then take the first turn right. Bessom Bridge car park is hidden away on your right. Further on (30mins, [2]), a footpath heads right ('lakeside circular walk'). This takes you across a small wooden footbridge and past a bird hide. Follow the path above the shore; you will soon come opposite your starting-point (and the very conspicuous sailing club) (45mins), then the path curves left to follow an 'arm' of the lake. After a period of dry weather, and provided the water-level is fairly low, it is possible to walk along the shore all the way around the 'arm', but you will need to jump across a fairly deep stream at its head; if in doubt keep to the path. If you have taken the shore route, follow it around a headland where the 'arm' rejoins the main part of the lake; at a small stream make your way up through the bracken and join the path at a gate ('Upton and dam'). On the path, keep right to follow the bank all the way around the 'arm' until you come to the same gate (1hr15mins, [3]).

Wimbleball from Haddon Hill

After the gate you soon have a choice: the 'rugged lakeside path' to the right is not difficult but it is narrow and can be slippery. It doesn't quite descend to the lakeside (there is a short there-and-back detour to the shore), but it passes through woods of young oak with frequent glimpses of the water beyond. The paths soon join up (1hr35mins) to continue along the long southern 'leg' of the reservoir, which is over a mile in length. At the 'toe' of the lake look out for a permitted footpath to the right, signposted to the dam, which takes you over a wooden footbridge (1hr55mins, [4]). The path now tracks along the southern shore, with one small interruption to pass around an outflow. A little further on, a path leaves to the left over a stile and parallel with a line of trees; this can be used to return to the Haddon Hill car park, if you have started from there. Otherwise, continue on the lakeside path until the rather plain concrete dam appears quite suddenly in front of you. There is a good picnic spot here, with several flat stones set in an area of grass (2hr30mins, [5]). Both the track from Haddon Hill and the short walk join here.

Turn right to go over the dam, then at the end right again and through a gate. Follow the footpath along the lakeside. At first most signs of human activity are hidden from view unless there are boats out on the lake, but after passing a wooden race hut the path rounds a headland and leads behind the sailing club. Cross an access drive and follow the signs past an adventure play area and across a camp site to return to the café and car park (3hrs).

Extension to Withiel Florey (complete walk ● 11.5 miles, ascents and descents of 375 metres): At the 15-minute point ([1]) cross the road and continue alongside the lake, keeping right on the footpath when the track heads left. In around 15 minutes, after passing the end of the lake, go through a gate and follow the path across fields, keeping parallel with the right-hand boundary. In the third field the path heads right to cross a stream, before bringing you to the part-whitewashed 12th century church at Withiel Florey. Return the same way.

Short walk: To the dam (● 2.1 miles, ascents and descents of 90 metres). From the café car park, return to the lane and turn left. Be careful of traffic going to and from the sailing club and camp site. In about half a mile, the road bends left: continue ahead on a signposted bridleway that goes past a farm building then through a gate. In a quarter of a mile take the track on the left, signposted to the dam. This brings you to the northern end of the dam. Go left through a gate to rejoin the main walk and return to the café and car park.

See also Walk 39A for a circuit including the Wimbleball hub, Hartford, Bury and Haddon Hill.

© Stan Lester 2018. Last recce 8/2018. Please email editor@exmoorwalker.uk with any updates or comments.

This route description is provided freely and in good faith. You are welcome to use, copy and distribute it for personal and non-profit purposes (attribution—non-commercial—no derivatives). No responsibility is taken for any errors or omissions, or for your navigation or safety on the walk. Introductory and safety information at exmoorwalker.uk.